National Indian Child Welfare Association

CHAMPION FOR NATIVE CHILDREN

2022 Award Guidelines

Established by the National Indian Child Welfare Association's (NICWA) board of directors, this annual award honors an individual or organization that has made outstanding contributions to the well-being of Indigenous children in the United States and/or Canada. The inaugural award was presented at the 30th Annual Protecting Our Children Conference in Scottsdale, Arizona, in 2012.

The awardee should be an individual or organization that has been a leader, social worker, case manager, or foster parent who has made significant contributions to the well-being of Indigenous children, families, and communities in the United States and/or Canada. Such contributions may consist of:

- Demonstrated excellence, creativity, and leadership affecting positive change in tribal child welfare, children's mental health, or juvenile justice in tribal communities;
- Advocacy for tribal children, families, and communities;
- Development and/or promotion of programs and policies that support tribes, children, and families;
- Work for development of policy designed to protect Native children, enhance the well-being of Native children, or to strengthen the Indian Child Welfare Act;
- Work to obtain funding necessary to implement programs and policies supporting Indigenous children and families; or
- A significant body of work that spans several years up to lifelong service to promoting the well-being of Indigenous children and families and strengthening tribal sovereignty.

Awardee will be honored at NICWA's hybrid 40th Annual Protecting Our Children National American Indian Conference on Child Abuse and Neglect in Orlando, Florida on April 3-6, 2022. Participation to accept the award, whether virtually or in-person, is a condition of receipt.
